

Parents Are Language Partners

Invite families' knowledge of languages and learning history and communicate a practical shared support goal.

10 min preparation | Staff planning and review

Before you begin

Choose one school procedure and identify what a teacher or family must actually do.

Use it in four steps

1. Invite families' knowledge of languages and learning history and communicate a practical shared support goal.
2. Name responsibility, resources and a realistic review point.
3. Trial the action in one setting and collect access or participation evidence.
4. Revise the procedure from the evidence and communicate the agreed practice.

Worked example: Parents Are Language Partners

Ask a family what the learner can explain, read or discuss in familiar languages and invite an example where feasible. Use that information to plan access; do not make families responsible for replacing classroom teaching.

Teacher prompt: "What action will happen, who owns it, and how will we check it?"

Review the evidence

Ask whether staff can describe the action and whether learners can access the task more independently.

Review and refine

Replace specialist-led reminders with a sustainable shared routine; retain review when evidence shows a barrier.

Apply in your setting

Apply to curriculum planning, assessment instructions and family communication; keep responsibilities explicit.

Adjust the language support

A1-A2 access: keep the subject goal; use visuals, a small word bank, pointing or drawing and partner rehearsal. Use a home language to establish meaning where helpful.

B1-B2 extension: ask for fuller explanations, precise subject vocabulary and qualifications. Reduce sentence openings when learners can organise the response independently.

These are starting points, not placement rules. Judge support from the learner's response to this task; proficiency can differ across skills.
